

Dawit Bekele is Director of the African Regional Bureau of the Internet Society. In the last 10 years at the Internet Society, Dawit led major Africa wide initiatives including the support for the development of Internet Exchange points in more than 30 countries, the development of Internet technical capacity as well as the promotion of the multi-stakeholder Internet Governance model. Prior to that, he worked at Addis Ababa University and as a consultant for major international organizations such as UNECA, UNESCO and the World Bank. He was also co-founder and managing director of an Internet company that pioneered e-commerce in his native Ethiopia.

Dawit obtained a Ph.D. in Computer Science from the University of Paul Sabatier in France, in 1994, and more recently in 2014, a Masters degree in Business Leadership from the University of South Africa. Dawit is Ethiopian and speaks Amharic, French and English.
